SHORT TAKES

Adoption Fees and Successful Placements in Animal Shelters

Some involved with animal welfare are critical of free adoptions of adult cats, believing it devalues the cat in the adopter's eyes, or it may attract adopters who are unable to fulfill the financial responsibilities of cat ownership. Advocates believe waiving the fee for adult cats will enhance rates of adoptions and provide opportunities to educate owners who may otherwise adopt from neighbors or may respond to "free to good home" ads.

A study in the Journal of Applied Animal Welfare Science (October 2009) examined the attachment of adopters to their cats in relation to payment or fee waiver for adoption. One hundred seventy-three adopters from a rescue facility in Maine participated in the study, of which 95 paid no adoption fee for the adult cat, and 78 paid a $75 adoption fee. Whether or not an adopter paid the fee was a function of when the shelter was running promotional campaigns for adopters by offering fee waivers.

Using an attachment scale consisting of a series of statements (e.g., the adopter would indicate agreement or disagreement) (1=strongly disagree, 4=strongly agree), pet attachment was rated. Statistical analysis of the results showed no significant difference in the two groups' attachment to their adopted cat. The authors conclude "implementing a free adult cat adoption program in shelters around the country could dramatically affect the lives of thousands of shelter cats who otherwise either would reside in the shelter for months awaiting adoption or be euthanized. The ultimate goal of shelters is to adopt their animals into loving homes with families who are committed to the success of their pet. The free adult cat adoption program may accomplish these goals, and shelters can feel confident in implementing the program."

Feline Casualties in Oregon of Swine Flu

Two cats have died of swine flu in Oregon, leading veterinarians to investigate why the disease has become a threat to a household pet.

According to Emilio DeBess, the state public health veterinarian, said that the cat died in early December 2009 on the Oregon coast after catching the H1N1 virus from its owner. Another cat died from the virus early in November in the town of Lebanon after a child in the household got sick with swine flu.

DeBess is working with veterinary researchers at Oregon State University to determine why cats might be susceptible to the virus. Various diseases in animals have long been a threat to humans, such as rabies, or the West Nile virus. But with swine flu, the disease is going the other way, from humans to an animal — which is rare. ♦

Love and Money

“Results showed no statistical difference in the two groups’ attachment to the adopted cats.”

A Picture is Worth. . .

“It’s not easy being THIS good looking, but someone has to do it! I’m an active, loyal guy that just wants to play and to play some more! Take me home and I will be your running buddy and entertain you with my goofy personality.”

“You see these buns of steel? It’s from all the tail wagging. I’m an outgoing guy that loves swimming, playing fetch, running, biking, and did I mention running? I am a licensed Goof Ball and guaranteed to make you laugh.”

“Bigger really is better! Sure I may have a little extra junk in my trunk, but that just means more of me to love! Besides a big butt, I also have a big heart and I’m willing to share all that love with you. Spend a few minutes with me and you’ll fall in love faster than I can eat a can of Fancy Feast!”

“Some say growing old is a bummer, but it’s not so. I can still hang out with the best of them. Adopt me and we can watch reruns of Frasier and have a warm glass of milk before it’s nighty-night time. I qualify for the Seniors-for-Seniors discount, so come check me out!”

Could you love a beautiful lady with an attitude?

“My name is Miss Kitty.

I have been a long time resident of the shelter and would really love a home of my own. I used to be an office kitty back in the old building. Since we moved to this building I have been living in one of the Cat Colonies.

The reason I have been here so long is that I have attitude! Most people do not understand me. I need someone who will give me some space. I can be affectionate on my own terms, but sometime I become over stimulated and can nip or scratch.

I would prefer to live with only a few other kitties. I'm not crazy about the idea of living with a lot of other cats.

Could you be the right person to love me, attitude and all?”

Cat reunited with man after 4 years

By Martin Griffith
Associated Press

Giddy the kitty has returned home to her Reno owner, four years after vanishing and somehow winding up on the northern Oregon Coast.

Officials at the Clatsop Animal Assistance center in Warrenton, Ore., were able to track the feline back to Bill Tweedy with the help of an identifying microchip embedded in the animal.

Giddy earlier this month was flown to Reno in a commercial airliner and reunited with Tweedy, who had adopted her for companionship after going through a divorce.

"She wasn't scared or didn't move away when I went to pick her up," Tweedy said of the reunion. "She snuggled up in my arm, and she stayed there. I think she remembered me."

After the house cat darted out the front door of his home in 2007 and failed to return, a heart-broken Tweedy gave her up for dead or stolen. He now thinks someone in Reno took in the cat and later moved to Oregon.

Tweedy, 48, a driver for NevCal Trucking, said he was shocked when he recently found out 6-year-old Giddy had turned up alive in Oregon.

"I was really happy to have her back," he said. "When I got her, I had just had a divorce and wanted company. I really missed her company the last several years."

A volunteer from the Oregon shelter, Lori Huntley, accompanied Giddy on her flight back home, said Krys T. Bart, local airport authority president and CEO and Nevada Humane Society board member.

"Reno-Tahoe International Airport is proud to serve over 3.8 million passengers per year, whether they come on two legs or four," Bart said.

Adopt a Barn Cat Non-Toxic Pest Control and Save a Life

Feral cats are unsocialized cats who were born outside without a lot of human contact. While these kitties do not want to curl up on your lap, they still love life and want a place to call home. Once in an animal control shelter, most feral cats are put down because they would not make a good house pet. But you can adopt one or more cats to live outside on your property and save their lives!

Additionally, for the price of daily cat food, they will keep your out-buildings or stable rodent free.

We have several beautiful, healthy, neutered and vaccinated feral cats that are looking for outdoor homes with a barn, shed, or other shelter.

If you would like to adopt a barn cat (or several) contact Nevada Humane Society, e-mail info@nevadahumanesociety.org or phone 775-856-2000 ext. 336.

Be prepared for a brief period of adjustment. Moving to a new home is stressful for anyone, cats included! After a short stay in secure confinement, the cats will accept their new home and be doing their rodent patrols with enthusiasm. Help will be provided during the relocation process.
