

ASPCA[®] Cornell Maddie's[®] Shelter Medicine Conference Health & Safety Information

The Parties are committed to prioritizing the health and safety of their staff, conference speakers, conference attendees, and the community. By registering for the ASPCA Cornell Maddie's 2022 Shelter Medicine Conference (the "Conference"), the registrant agrees that they have read and understood the terms below and that they will adhere to safety procedures and protocols that align with guidance set forth by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) as well as rules and guidance other federal, state, and local governing authorities and ASPCA and/or Cornell University's policies.

All attendees may be required to be fully vaccinated against COVID-19, except when prohibited by applicable law. All attendees may be required to show proof of vaccination, such as the CDC vaccination card or other state-issued proof of vaccination, before entering the Conference. An attendee is considered "fully vaccinated" when the individual has received their second dose of any two-dose vaccines, or their single shot of any one-dose vaccine. In the event the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) issues guidance that effectively modifies what it means to be fully vaccinated, attendees will be required to follow such updated guidance. Please note that a booster shot is not required.

Attendees may be required to wear masks, including KN95 or equivalents, or comply with other Covid-19 related protocols when attending conference events. The decision as to whether to require masks will be at the sole discretion of the ASPCA, which will include guidance based upon applicable federal, state, and local guidance and regulations. The ASPCA reserves the right, in its sole discretion, to make changes to the safety protocols above, including the vaccination and masking requirements, in response to Covid-19 transmission levels, CDC guidance and applicable federal, state, and local guidance and regulations in the period immediately preceding the start of the Conference. The ASPCA shall not be liable if a registrant is unable or unwilling to attend the conference as a result of changes to the safety policies.
